L	Under the provisions of Revenue and Taxation Code section 62.3, if certain conditions are met, a transfer of a cotenancy interest in real property from one cotenant to the other cotenant that takes effect upon the death of one cotenant is not a change in ownership. This applies to transfers that occur on or after January 1, 2013.
The change in ownership exclusion for a transfer of an interest in real property applies as long as all of the following are met:	between cotenants that takes effect upon the death of one cotenant
<ul> <li>The transfer is solely by and between two individuals who together own as a result of the death of the transferor cotenant, the deceased cotenar resulting in the surviving cotenant owning 100 percent of the real propert</li> <li>For the one-year period immediately preceding the death of the transferor. The real property was the principal residence of both cotenants immediately preceding the death of the transferor. The surviving cotenant must sign, under penalty of perjury, an affidavit at deceased cotenant for the one-year period immediately preceding the death of the deceased cotenant for the one-year period immediately preceding the death of the deceased cotenant for the one-year period immediately preceding the death of the deceased cotenant for the one-year period immediately preceding the death of the deceased cotenant for the one-year period immediately preceding the death of the deceased cotenant for the one-year period immediately preceding the death of the deceased cotenant for the one-year period immediately preceding the death of the death of the transferor.</li> </ul>	t's interest in the real property is transferred to the surviving cotenant, y, and thereby terminating the cotenancy.  or cotenant, both of the cotenants were owners of record. tely preceding the transferor cotenant's death.  or cotenant, both of the cotenants continuously resided in the real property. firming that they continuously resided in the real property with the
